Fig. 2A is a block diagram of a system architecture for a purchasing department control and clearing site. The diagram shows a central block labeled 'Purchasing Department Control and Clearing Site' (28) which is connected to several other components. At the top, a 'Requisition' block (27) is connected to the central site. The Requisition block contains a table with columns for 'ID #', 'Item Description', and 'Date'. Below the central site, there are three 'In-box Buyer' blocks (29) labeled 'Buyer 1', 'Buyer 2', and 'Buyer 3'. To the right of the central site, there are two more blocks: 'Historical Record of Dept. Transactions' (31) and 'Main Listing Table' (30). The central site is connected to the Historical Record and Main Listing Table via bidirectional arrows. The Main Listing Table is also connected to the Historical Record via a bidirectional arrow. The In-box Buyer blocks are connected to the central site via bidirectional arrows. Handwritten annotations include '27A' pointing to the Requisition block, '27B' pointing to the 'Date' column, '27C' pointing to the 'Item Description' column, '28' pointing to the central site, '29' pointing to each of the three In-box Buyer blocks, '30' pointing to the Main Listing Table, and '31' pointing to the Historical Record block.
